

7 Days of Design

- By DR. REBECCA EPSTEIN -

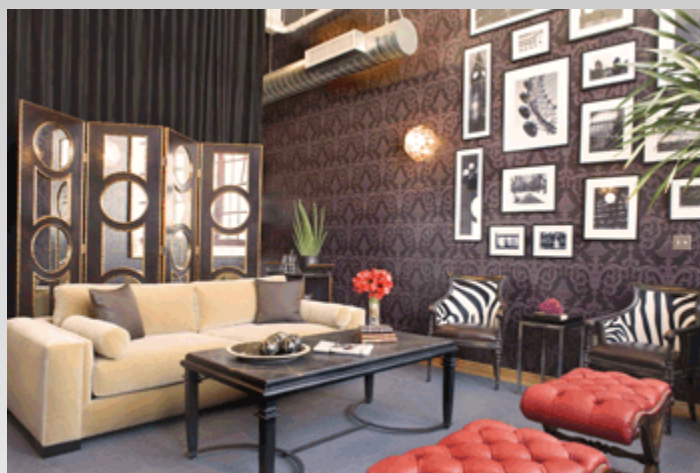

Photo by Kenneth Brown loft, Grey Crawford Photography

THIS WEEK IN THE CITY | Sunday 15

A BETTER BISCUIT BOX

There's been a lot of chatter lately about upscale downtown dwellings. Among the highly anticipated residences – and not just because of the phenomenal factory-pane windows – is The Biscuit Company Lofts, in the former West Coast headquarters for the National Biscuit Company (a.k.a. Nabisco). From Friday through April 29, step into the loft lifestyle of your art-inebriated dreams by taking a public tour of three renovated spaces there, each decorated by an established designer. Kenneth Brown, star of HGTV's reDesign, created a “gentleman's pied-à-terre” for L.A. Mart Design Center; Biscuit Lofts architect Aleks Istanbulu went for minimalist modularism; and the principals of Andersen-Miller Design merged art with urbanism in innovative ways. Closed Mondays. $25 per tour. 673 Mateo St., Downtown L.A. Lamag.com/biscuitcompanylofts